SE-A01 | Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Family and respondent identity

All names, events, institutions, numbers and addresses below are invented solely for local software acceptance testing.

Case and household

Matter: Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Test docket: FA-TEST-207-0022

Court: Superior Court / Family Support Magistrate Division; Judicial district: New London at New London.

Plaintiff/interrogating party: Morgan Chen; defendant/responding party: Riley Chen.

Residence: 9 Example Wharf, Condominium Unit 5C, New London CT 06320.

Condominium owner: Riley Chen (the respondent); deed dated 11/15/2022; property mortgage held with Fictional Community Bank.

Relationship to owner: self / owner-occupant. Moved into the unit 11/20/2022.

Adults in household: Riley Chen and spouse Devin Hale; Devin is respondent's spouse.

Devin Hale contributes $700 monthly toward shared housing utilities and groceries, not employment wages.

Support circumstances

Child: Emery Chen, born 06/05/2018, resides primarily with Morgan Chen.

Current support order: $220/week paid by Riley through the Connecticut state disbursement unit, order dated 04/05/2024.

Riley is self-employed through a single-member LLC and has no employer paying W-2 wages.

SE-A01 | Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Respondent disability, litigation, asset declarations

All names, events, institutions, numbers and addresses below are invented solely for local software acceptance testing.

Ability to work and public assistance

Riley is able to work about 35 hours weekly; no current disability claim or doctor prohibition against full-time work.

No claim for SSD, SSI, state supplement, Temporary Family Assistance, medical assistance or SAGA; no disability-related lawsuit or accident.

Litigation and assets

No lawsuits pending; no settlement statements; no anticipated lawsuit proceeds.

No inheritance or property expected within six months; no estate administrator or probate matter.

No money held by another person on Riley's behalf.

No rental properties and no trust in which Riley is settlor or beneficiary.

No other job since 01/01/2024; prior employment at Sample Pier Repair Inc., 1 Practice Dock, New London CT 06320, 2022 through 12/31/2023, mechanic at $28/hour.

SE-B02 | Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Business organization and work

All names, events, institutions, numbers and addresses below are invented solely for local software acceptance testing.

Entity details

Business: Harborline Marine Diagnostics LLC, 20 Prototype Pier, New London CT 06320.

Entity: single-member Connecticut LLC formed 01/05/2024; sole owner/managing member Riley Chen, 100 percent ownership.

Other owners, partners and directors: none.

Work: marine sensor inspection, troubleshooting small-vessel electronic systems, issue work orders and prepare maintenance reports.

Typical business labor: 35 hours weekly, with roughly 30 billable hours; standard service billing rate $85 per hour.

Riley works alone; no employees, wages, partners or subcontractor payroll.

Billing and clients

Invoices collected by ACH bank transfer or check; rarely by cash. In the last 12 months there were two cash invoices totaling $520.

Five largest clients in the prior 12 months: Beacon Marina LLC, Oceanview Community Marine, Sample Fisheries Co., East Dock Ferry Inc., Harbor Glass Ventures.

Company mailing and principal business address: 20 Prototype Pier, New London CT 06320.

SE-B02 | Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Business expense ledger

All names, events, institutions, numbers and addresses below are invented solely for local software acceptance testing.

Typical expense values converted to weekly

Boat fuel for site visits: $125 per week.

Tools and electronics components: $200 per week.

Workshop rent: $300 per week.

Business liability insurance: $60 per week.

Phone/internet: $35 per week.

Software subscriptions: $25 per week.

Total typical weekly business expenses: $745.

Average weekly gross collected receipts over 2026 through September: $2,550; average net business proceeds before personal taxes: $1,805.

SE-C03 | Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Tax filings and business cash management

All names, events, institutions, numbers and addresses below are invented solely for local software acceptance testing.

Business taxes

Harborline Marine Diagnostics LLC is a disregarded single-member LLC for income tax reporting.

Riley files Form 1040 with Schedule C rather than a separate federal partnership or corporation income tax return.

Riley filed 2024 and 2025 individual returns with Schedule C; copies of both are identified and available.

2025 Schedule C gross receipts $129,600, expenses $37,440, net profit $92,160.

2024 Schedule C gross receipts $98,000, expenses $31,800, net profit $66,200.

Bank and bookkeeping

Business account: Fictional Community Bank, Business Checking ending MOCK-8841, 30 Sample Street, New London CT 06320.

Bank statements for April through September 2026 (six months) are maintained in company files.

Invoice and payment ledger tracked in a local bookkeeping spreadsheet, with receipts scanned and saved monthly.

Accountant: Pia Collins CPA, 16 Model Avenue, New London CT 06320.

Riley has no separate business partners or employees.

SE-C03 | Chen v. Chen (self-employment support review)

Prior employment and present public-assistance disclosures

All names, events, institutions, numbers and addresses below are invented solely for local software acceptance testing.

Previous employment

Employer before LLC: Sample Pier Repair Inc., 1 Practice Dock, New London CT 06320.

Service dates: 05/01/2022 to 12/31/2023; position electronics mechanic, 40 hours weekly at $28/hour.

No other employment since Harborline Marine Diagnostics LLC started 01/05/2024.

Financial assurances

No pending lawsuits or settlements; no inheritance expectation; no rental property and no beneficial trust.

Not disabled, no disability application, no public assistance.